PASTORAL MUSINGS

One of the things I enjoy in my spare time is roaming the floors of King's Used Books in downtown Detroit. They have a great theological section on the fourth floor and a nice section on the first of Bible Studies and commentaries. I was recently there and came home with four books and a small pamphlet. One of the books I found was published by the old (Lutheran) Muhlenberg Press in 1946. It is titled, "A Manual on Worship".

As the title suggests, the book is all about our Lutheran way of worship. The introduction to the book had some very enlightening things to say about the Lutheran Church being a liturgical church and why we come to church in the first place. I was so intrigued with them that I am going to let the words of the writer be my musings for this month. While the author of the book was Paul Zeller Strodach, Pastor F. H. Knubel wrote the introduction that I am sharing with you.

For good reasons she chooses to be liturgical in her worship, and her people with all of their freedom universally follow the choice.

One of her reasons is that public worship must be preserved from individualism. The Church is a social organism, a divine and the only enduring social organism. The man who “goes to church” only for his personal spiritual profit has mistaken the character of a church service. His conception of worship is an entirely selfish one. He has failed to distinguish between private devotions and public worship, both of which are necessary. The Christian as he “goes to church” should realize himself as an integral part of a congregation, of a fellowship of men, of the communion of saints. The worship is a social function. He prays with others for the whole and for many great interests, not primarily for his individual needs. The Lord’s Prayer, with its “we” and “us” and “our” is the ideal prayer for public worship. The worshiper may rightly go beyond even the one congregation and recognize himself as in unity with all congregations of Christians. The effort to worship publicly in this manner will soon open up an increasing joy for the Christian, as he realizes the new richness of his worship. It becomes manifest however that from his point of view a well-conceived liturgy is needed, and that no passing thought of a single minister should determine how the many shall worship.

A second reason for liturgical worship grows out of the first one. The fellowship of ideal worship is greater than the whole company of Christians now on earth. We may know ourselves as one in our praise of the Lord with the saints of all ages. There is a unity with those who now worship Him in heaven. This is the powerful thought in the Te Deum (from Matins): ‘Heaven and earth are full of the majesty of Thy Glory. The glorious company of the Apostles praise Thee. The goodly fellowship of the Prophets praise Thee. The noble army of martyrs praise Thee. The holy Church throughout all the world doth acknowledge Thee.’ It is the same thought of the united worship of heaven and earth which is found in the doxologies: ‘Praise Him all creatures here below; Praise Him above ye heavenly host.’ So also the Preface in the Communion office repeats it: ‘Therefore with angels and archangels, and with all the company of heaven, we laud and magnify Thy glorious Name; evermore praising you and saying: Holy, Holy, Holy, etc.’ It is an added joy therefore to the true worshiper if he may realize that he is using forms which the saints of the ages have employed. Such is the case with the historic Liturgy. It has not been prepared by some committee, however wise and pious. It has grown with the centuries. The piety of all times has tested it, added what was worthy, cleansed it from what was unworthy. The fragrant incense of a ceaseless devotion of multitudes to the Savior comes to us in the Liturgy.

(The above was written by me in April of 2010—long before any of us had ever heard of or dreamed of a pandemic striking the world over! But as I perused this article I saw an opportunity to share it again and put it in context with 2022. What is said about worship then is still true today. When this pandemic started one of my fears, and that of many other pastors besides myself, was that people would get so used to worshipping online that they would not return to church once the pandemic was over. Too many people are too slow in coming back. The Christian does take all the proper precautions to keep from getting and/or giving COVID. The Church corporately does the same. And having done all that we can from a human point of view to protect ourselves and those around us, we put our faith and trust in the Lord, set our fears aside, and get on with our lives. We were created by God to be social people; to be in the world, just not of the world. Recently two visitors worshiped with us. Both, not related, had been worshipping online but finally came to the realization that online worship just wasn’t as meaningful and inspiring as worshipping in person. HOW TRUE! 4/22)

A Blessed Easter season to all of you as we gather over the next seven weeks with the Church in heaven and on earth to praise and worship our creator and redeemer!

Another Ash Wednesday, another Lent, another Good Friday, and another Easter. I've lived through quite a few Easter seasons, but they are always sort of the same. Sometimes what I give up or what and who we have for dinner changes but everything else sort of stays the same. The sermons, the songs change a little. The way we dress has changed over the years, sometimes even where we go to church changes.

Lots of things in our world and life change constantly. Sometimes good, sometimes bad, but there is always change. Don't like the weather? wait a minute and it will change. But there is one thing that hasn't changed and will never change and that is Gods' love for us. In fact, He loves us so much that He sent His own Son to the cross to die for our sins...for everyone. That will never change. He paid the full price once and for all.

The Priests of old used to give sacrifices over and over again and once a year would go behind the curtain to the Holy of Holies and sprinkle blood on the altar for our sins, but Jesus shed his own blood on the cross to cover all sins. He split the curtain wide open so all could go directly to God.

We continue to sin, but God now sees us as pure and holy because we have been washed clean with the blood of Jesus. So, another Easter season reminds us and helps us remember what Jesus did for us. I am so grateful that will never change.

CHILDREN'S MINISTRY NEWS Oldsters to Youngsters

Jesus' Little Lambs

The April mailing from "Oldsters to Youngsters" will, first, contain a calendar with suggestions for Fasting (giving up things), Prayers, and Almsgiving (doing good for others) in the remaining days of Lent, plus the true account (not to be confused with a "made-up" story) of Good Friday. Then the joy of Easter will be celebrated, the Joy of Jesus' resurrection which assures us that one day we, too, will rise from the dead!! We will send these with a prayer that the children, as well as their parents, will be moved to want a closer relationship with Jesus and His church.

If you will have children as guests in your home, we encourage you to borrow some books from the children's section in the library to share with them. There will also be a few extra worksheets and pictures available on our table in the hall. May you have the opportunity to share your Easter joy in Jesus with some child.

NEW HOPE FOOD PANTRY

In the month of February, we served 20 families, 71 people, gave 3 Bibles and 2 Pks. of diapers. Year to date totals are 39 families, 129 people, 6 Bibles and 7 Pks. of diapers.

We recently received a nice allotment of food from Macomb County. Thank you to Chuck Schroeder and Tim, for helping along with Ed and Casey Danner to carry it in.

We have decided to start serving clients inside the building again. This will give us an opportunity to speak with them and ask if there is anything more that we may help them with.

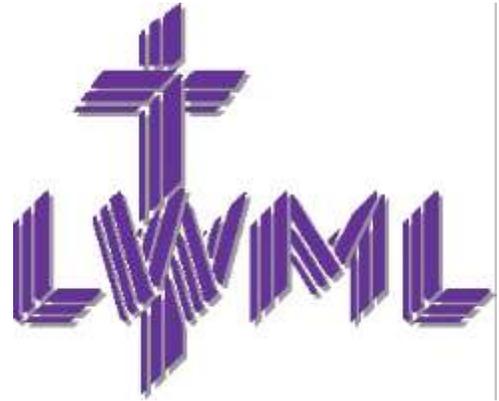

There were no plans made to distribute Easter food baskets.

The item of the month is juice again. If anyone wants to help, please put it by the food pantry door. Our next pantry meeting is Saturday, April 2, at 10 a.m. We will always welcome new people and visitors.
